By the author of "The Initials," Large octave. Price 50 cents. This is one of those novels which will continue to be read like hose of Scott and other great masters of fiction, long after the exeration which saw it first has moldered in the grave. The cene is laid in Germany. The fair author is the daughter of the celebrated Lord Erkakine, formerly Lord High Chancellor of England. Educated in Great Britain, but since her marriage o a German nobleman living on the Continent, she depicts German life with rare fidelity. In the whole realm of modern fiction there is no more lovely creation than the heroine. All who have read "The Initials," by the same author, will at once procure this, her latest production. We hear of no fiction, in fact, that we would sooner recommend, for while it will factioate all who merely read for amusement, it will delight as well a. all who merely read for amusement, it will delight as well a,

"Béyond question the best work of this kind that we have ever seen. Re trader should be without it. Its cost will be aver seen. Re trader should be without it. Its cost will be aver during times over."

"This is valuable work, based upon correct principles, and was are confident, if every business man in the community had a copy of it, counterfeiting would be a thing of the past.

"A good idea, and will also be useful to Brokers and Gashiers of country Banks."

Single copies sent free to any part of the Continent on receipt of the price.

NOW READY: The NEW EDITION of COZZENS'S

SPARROWGRASS PAPERS.

The New-York Albion, which is not apt to praise an indifferent book, says, in a column notice: "A very charming book, redolent of geniality, gentleness, quaint humor, and sound philosophy; and if this praise appear at first sight too high, it will, we think, be borne out by careful examination. For the moral lessons that are insinuated rather than inculcated by these playful effusions are excelient and greatly needed. You have isaghed probably while the majority of these Papers met your eye from month to month in the pages of Fatnam; you have probably laughed, we say, over the mishays and disappointments of the Sparrowgrasses in their efforts at perfect rural bils. have probably laughed, we say, over the mishaps and desapointments of the Sparrowgrasses in their efforts at perfect rural bilsa. But have you nothing noted of the contented spirit, and the good-tempered, and the loving, that underlies the general tene of badinage? If so, you have read caraleasly and unprofitably, and will do well to read again. Depend upon it, there are not a few of us who have mentally got the heavegot 'em bad, too,' and go fuming and fussing through life to the anneyance of ourselves and others, because town and country, men, and women, public affairs and private, won't come out precisely as we wish. In the way of books, it might be advisable for such vain searchers after the philosopher's stone to try dieting for a while on (Charles) Lumb and Sparrowgrass.
